DENOCRATIC STATE CONVENTION-SECOND Tar -The Convention re-assembled on Friday morning at 9 o'clock.

The Chairman, on motion, then submitted agat opposition, was adopted.

that "the members of this convention side themselves to support the nominee of pe resolution was finally withdrawn.

that the nominations be proceeded with, when James Barbour, esq, of Culpeper, Lacher, of Rickbridge, which was greeted with overwhelming applause. He spoke of as a veteran worn in all wars of the Jemeracy for a quarter of a century, in the fant ranks of the battle, and one in every say worthy of the united support of the party. lie believed him to be an honest, a capable and faithful man, honorable and honored slike in public and private life. In this concetton he alluded to the "Tenth Logion f Democracy" as the stronghold and suppirt of the Democratic party of the State, and raid a gloxing tribute to its unflinching frmness in the severest trials of the party.

Mr. Williams, of Wythe, took exception at the praise bestowed upon the Tenth Legin, which he considered ignored the signal grace of the great "Southwest" from which breame. As to the nomination, the duty as imposed upon him to protest to the last Mainst John Letcher, whose record proved that he was not worthy of a constable's disnist in the Alleghanies.

Mr. Flourney, of Prince Edward, advocathing has his errors, and to review antecedents, he would ask where was Henry A. Wise in 1540?

Mr. O. Jennings Wise .- With a gallant hand of State Rights Democrats, engaged in breaking down the corrupt administration of Martin Van Buren, who has since proven himself an abolitionist.

Mr. Flourney said that he intended no rebut he only intended to show that men were slass inconsistent. Where, he asked (ambigulusly.) was Henry A. Wise ever consistent! He then spoke especially in behalf of Leicher, whose economy as a statesman had made him invaluable to the whole union. Mr. Wise .- I have again to reply to an as-to my heart. He has intimated that Henry A. Wise is inconsistent in everything. I know but two instances in his public career that the world calls inconsistent. First, when at an early age, taking the teachings of the expediency of a United States Bank other circumstances, he did change his opin- each party to bind the bargain. ion, but not so far as to go for the Benton scheme. He and Caleb Cushing originated the scheme which is now called the Sub-Treasury. Again at the age of twenty-one scarcely more than a boy, he took the stump in Eastern Virginia and started in favor of the "mixed basis." In that canvassitself be changed his opinions and convictions, and hence he was enabled to lead the suffrage basis in the Convention of 1850-51, and to belo out the Tenth Legion. Mr. Flournoy replied that this was the ket in December will weigh better. first he had heard of Gov. Wise being the author of the Sub-Treasury scheme. General Wm. F. Gordon originated it, he said, beoriginated the plan, but Henry A. Wise was the first to give it its full development. Col. Harrison, of Monroe, vehemently protested against the nomination of Letcher. Timothy Rives, esq., of Prince George, was then loudly called for. The "war borse" mounted the rostrum by request, and opened his batteries against Letcher. This steech we cannot pretend to report with faithfulness. He reviewed the history of the objectionable nominee ab initio; the Ruffner speech was thoroughly discussed, and every iota of the Leteber record torn up and held in glaring colors before the convention .--After speaking for two bours, be at length gave way to a motion to adjourn, which, after much opposition, was carried, and be promised to resume his remarks at 31 p. m. AFTERNOON SESSION .- Mr. Rives continued his sweeping phillippic against Letcher, and closed in an hour. giving bim a slight rub on reminiscences, personally applicable, then going into the main branch of the argument. The speech was a model, almost extempore as it was, of eloquence and refined argument, meetmay be considered a criticism, carrying every point by storm. Another objection urged against Mr. Letcher was that he had been too West-he desired to know whether any western man present would vote against him on this ofjection, and go home and tell his constituency. (Cries of "No! No!") After having stoken for two hours, Mr. Pryor became exhausted and was compelled to retire, when the convention adjourned until half past seven o'clock. During the speech of Mr. Pryor, Col. Jesse Hargrove, of Essex, fainted, and was carried out. NIGHT SESSION .- The debate was continued by Messrs. Treadway, Maffit, Cabell, and

A great deal of confusion ensued on the call for the question, in the midst of which Mr. 0. Jennings Wise went forward to speak .-Some baranguing ensued on the 10 o'clock limitation question; which was with great difficulty quested by the Chairman, who Black and colored French Cloths difficulty queiled by the Chairman, who emashed his official mallet in the height of the confusion. It was now ten minutes to ten o'clock. Mr. Wise then proceeded to enter his protest against the nomination of John Letober, preceding it with a gallant vindication of his father from the comparison which had been drawn between the records of the two. His remarks were confined chiefly to the Ruffner speech. LATER-Dec. 4, 2 A. M .-- After considerable discussion, which was protracted until Wm. Democrat, Warrenton Whig. Marlboro 15 minutes to 12 o'clock, and in which Messrs. Harman, of Staunton, Robert Tyler, of Brocke, Gilmer of Albemarle, and others participated, the question was loudly called lor, and the Chair stated, if there were no other nominations, the Convention would proceed to the vote.

Mr. Harrison, of Monroe, then came forward on the stage, and in a very carnest and heat speech, nominated. Henry A. Etmundson, of Roancke.

Mr. B. W. Jackson, of Wood, put in nomination. John W. Brockenbrough, of Rockbridge. Mr. R F. Dennis, nominated Hon. Wm

Mr. Barbour, as previously stated, had nominated Hon. Jao. Letcher, of Rockbridge. At one o'clock A. M. the roll was called, and the voting commenced, and on the first ballot, the HON. JOHN LETCHER was nominated by a majority of 17,520 over al
